Each guest shares their personal side of their journey from their first thoughts of seeking a professional career to reaching their goals and beyond. Taurean Prince was drafted number 12 overall which was a dream come true. He credits his family situation growing up and living in temporary housing has built him and gave him a lot of character. His job on the court is to make it as difficult as possible for the other players and attention to detail, knowing who is doing what and what they are doing is the key to having a successful playoff. Chase Outlaw is a professional bull rider who competes against an animal for at least 8 second ride. He has always wanted to be a cowboy. He trains by taking care of the farm, the things that have to be done. He still doesn’t know what to expect after riding for 8 years. He shares, “I have yet to prove what I have set out to prove, so that’s the fuel that keeps me burning and keeps me coming back”. Abigail Dixon competes in the Women’s Surfing League. When competing against a higher rank surfer she tries not to think about it, upsets happen. It depends what the ocean favors that day, it comes down to playing in the waves and the ocean is unpredictable. She tells those who want to start surfing, “the ocean is trying not to hurt you, it is there for fun. If you have a fearful mind set, you are not embracing the moment and you are going to have a hard time.”
