General Synopsis for Episode #1316

In this episode of Pets.tv, dog, cat and horse lovers meet Leo Grillo the founder of D.E.L.T.A. Rescue the largest animal shelter for of its kind in the world. In 1979, Leo gave up an acting career to dedicate his life to helping abandon and abused pets. The rescue has a full-equipped hospital, which is funded by donations and run by veterinarian Dr. Gaylord Brown, also know as the Pet Vet in other Pets.tv episodes. In 1988, the Horse Rescue of America was started to give a home to abandoned horses. Leo knows each horse's personality and the special story of how they came to live at the rescue. Over 200 feral cats have their own home at D.E.L.T.A. Rescue, which was once owned by Winnie the Pooh artist Richard Moore. The viewers learn that feral cats are kept in colonies and the kittens that have been petted are friendlier than the adult cats.
